The AI Client Kit

110 AI prompts, 30 outreach scripts, 5 follow-up sequences and a client call toolkit for getting clients

DENISE CULLOM

How to use this kit

This kit is built to be used, not read. Open it next to your AI assistant (ChatGPT, Claude, Gemini, Copilot or any other), find the step you're on, copy, fill in the [brackets], and go.

What's inside

- Part 1: Your voice setup prompt. Do this first. It makes every other prompt sound like you.
- Part 2: 110 AI prompts organized by sales step
- Part 3: 30 outreach scripts by channel
- Part 4: 5 follow-up sequences of 5 touches each
- Part 5: How to use the pipeline tracker (the spreadsheet included with this kit)
- Part 6: The client call toolkit: a 15-minute fit call script, a 45-minute discovery call script, 12 objections with responses and an after-call checklist

Three rules that make this work

1. Fill in every bracket. Specific inputs get specific outputs.
2. AI drafts, you decide. Read, cut and personalize everything before you send it.
3. Never paste private data about prospects or clients into an AI tool. Public information only.

New to the system behind these templates? The AI Client Playbook walks through the full process step by step.

Part 1: Your voice setup prompt

Find 3 things you've written that sound like you: a client email, a LinkedIn post, a text to a colleague. Then run this once and save the result.

Voice setup

Here are 3 messages I've written that sound like me:

1. [paste]
2. [paste]
3. [paste]

Study them and write my "voice rules": 6 to 8 short rules covering tone, typical sentence length, words and phrases I use often, words I never use, how I open messages, how I close them, and how formal I am. Then rewrite this generic message using my rules: "Hi, I hope this message finds you well. I wanted to reach out to see if you might be interested in my services."

From now on in this conversation, follow my voice rules for everything you write for me. Never use exclamation marks unless I do, never use the phrases "I hope this finds you well," "just circling back," or "touch base," and keep messages shorter than you think they should be.

Where to save your voice rules: In ChatGPT, use Custom Instructions or a Project. In Claude, use a Project's instructions. In other tools, keep them in a note and paste them at the top of any writing prompt.

Part 2: 110 AI prompts

A. Niche and offer (prompts 1 to 10)

- 1. Find your best-fit client. I'm a [role] who helps [type of client] with [result]. My three favorite past clients were: [one line each]. Based on what they have in common, describe my ideal client in 5 bullets: industry, size, decision maker, the problem that makes them look for help, and where they spend time online.
- 2. Find the expensive problem. My ideal client is [paste]. List the 7 most common problems they have that I could solve with [service]. For each: what it costs them, the words they'd use to describe it, and how urgent it feels. Rank by urgency.
- 3. Write your one sentence. Here's how I describe my work today: [paste]. Rewrite it as "I help [who] [get result] without [pain]." Give me 5 versions from conservative to bold. No jargon.
- 4. Package three offers. I help [one sentence]. Suggest a starter, core and premium offer. For each: name, what's included, timeline, result, and a typical price range for [market] at my experience level ([years/level]).
- 5. Stress-test your niche. I want to focus on [niche]. Argue against this choice: list the 5 biggest risks (market size, budget, competition, reachability, fit with my skills). Then tell me how to test the niche in 30 days without committing fully.
- 6. Find adjacent niches. My best clients are [description]. Suggest 5 adjacent niches with the same problem and similar budgets that I could expand into later, and explain why each fits.
- 7. Name your offer. My core offer is [describe]. Suggest 10 clear, benefit-led names. Avoid puns and buzzwords. Mark your top 3 and say why.
- 8. Turn features into outcomes. Here's what's included in my offer: [list]. For each item, write the outcome the client actually cares about, in plain words, in under 15 words.
- 9. Write a guarantee. I sell [offer] at [price]. Suggest 3 fair guarantees I could offer that reduce risk for the client without putting my business at risk. Explain the trade-offs.
- 10. Write your "who it's not for." My ideal client is [paste]. Write 5 short bullets describing who my offer is NOT for, so the wrong people self-select out.

B. Prospect research (prompts 11 to 20)

- 11. Find the watering holes. My ideal client is [paste]. List 15 specific places they spend time: named groups, communities, subreddits, newsletters, podcasts, associations, events and hashtags. For each, one sentence on how to show up helpfully without pitching.

- 12. Research a prospect. Here's a prospect's About page and latest post: [paste]. I help [one sentence]. Give me a 2-sentence summary of their business, 3 signs they might have [problem], one genuine detail to mention, and a 1-to-5 fit score with a reason.
- 13. Read a job post for buying signals. Here's a job post from [company]: [paste]. What problems does this reveal? Could my service [describe] solve part of this faster or cheaper than a hire? Suggest an angle for a first message.
- 14. Build LinkedIn search terms. My ideal client is [paste]. Give me 10 job titles, 10 keywords and 5 Boolean search strings I can use in LinkedIn search to find them.
- 15. Find referral partners. I help [one sentence]. List 10 types of professionals who serve the same clients but don't compete with me, and suggest how each could send me referrals.
- 16. Spot trigger events. My ideal client is [paste]. List 10 events (a launch, a hire, funding, a move, a new season) that make them more likely to need [service] right now, and where I could spot each one publicly.
- 17. Summarize a podcast guest. Here's a podcast episode description and show notes featuring [name]: [paste]. Summarize their business, their stated challenges and goals, and suggest a specific angle I could use to reach out.
- 18. Score a list. Here are 20 prospects with a short description of each: [paste]. Score each A, B or C for fit based on [my ideal client], and give a one-line reason for each score.
- 19. Find the decision maker. I want to work with [type of company] of [size]. Who usually makes the decision to hire a [your role]? Who influences it? What job titles should I look for?
- 20. Create a research checklist. Create a 5-minute research checklist I can follow for each prospect before I contact them, using only public information.

C. Profile and positioning (prompts 21 to 30)

- 21. Rewrite your LinkedIn headline. I help [one sentence]. Write 10 LinkedIn headlines under 220 characters that make it obvious who I help and with what. No buzzwords.
- 22. Rewrite your About section. Here's my current LinkedIn About section: [paste]. Rewrite it in my voice: open with the client's problem, explain how I help, include one proof point ([result]), and end with a clear call to action. Under 250 words.
- 23. Write a short bio. Write a 50-word and a 100-word bio for me in third person. Facts: [experience, results, who I help].
- 24. Turn a result into a case study. Here's a client result: [before, what I did, after]. Write a 150-word mini case study with a headline, the problem, what we did, and the result. Use placeholders for any numbers I didn't give you.

- 25. Write a featured post. Write a LinkedIn post I can pin to my profile that explains who I help, the problem I solve, and how to work with me. Under 200 words, in my voice.
- 26. Write your email signature line. Write 5 one-line email signature taglines that say what I do and link to [booking link or site].
- 27. Audit my profile. Here's my LinkedIn headline, About and last 3 posts: [paste]. If you were my ideal client ([paste]), would you know what I do and why to hire me? Give me 5 specific fixes.
- 28. Find your proof. Ask me 10 questions that will help me uncover results, numbers and stories from my past work that I can use as proof in my marketing.
- 29. Differentiate. Here's how 3 competitors describe themselves: [paste]. How can I describe my service so it clearly stands apart? Give me 5 angles.
- 30. Write a one-page service sheet. Write a one-page overview of my core offer ([details]) that I can send as a PDF after a call: problem, approach, what's included, timeline, investment, next step.

D. First messages (prompts 31 to 42)

- 31. Personal first message. Here's what I know about the prospect: [paste]. I help [one sentence]. Write a first message under 80 words that mentions one specific detail, connects it to [problem], and ends with a low-pressure question. Give me a LinkedIn version and an email version with a subject line under 6 words.
- 32. Comment-to-DM opener. I commented on [name]'s post about [topic]: [my comment]. Write a short DM that continues that conversation naturally without pitching. Under 50 words.
- 33. Job post opener. [Company] is hiring a [role]: [paste key lines]. Write a short message offering a faster or more flexible alternative while they hire. Under 80 words, not pushy.
- 34. Trigger event opener. [Prospect] just [event]. Write a short congratulations message that connects the event to a common challenge I help with, ending with an easy question. Under 70 words.
- 35. Mutual connection opener. [Name] and I are both connected to [mutual contact] / in [group]. Write a first message that mentions the connection naturally. Under 70 words.
- 36. Value-first opener. I help [one sentence]. Write a first message that offers [prospect] one specific, free idea to improve [area], based on [what I noticed]. Under 90 words, no ask other than "want me to send more?"
- 37. Event follow-up. I met [name] at [event] and we talked about [topic]. Write a short follow-up message that references the conversation and suggests a next step. Under 70 words.
- 38. Content-based opener. [Prospect] wrote/said [paste quote] in [article/podcast]. Write a short message responding to that idea genuinely and connecting it to my work. Under 80 words.

39. Subject lines. Write 15 email subject lines under 6 words for a first message to [prospect type] about [problem]. Avoid clickbait and sales words.

40. Shorten my message. Here's my draft: [paste]. Cut it to under 60 words without losing the specific detail or the question. Remove anything that sounds like a sales email.

41. Make it less salesy. Here's my draft: [paste]. Rewrite it so it sounds like a helpful peer, not a salesperson. Keep my voice.

42. A/B test two angles. Write two different first messages to [prospect type]: one leading with a problem, one leading with a result. Under 70 words each. Tell me what each one tests.

E. Warm network and referrals (prompts 43 to 52)

43. Reconnect with a past contact. Write a warm check-in to [name], who I worked with on [project] about [time] ago. Mention something specific, share that I now help [one sentence], and ask if they know anyone who might need that. Under 70 words.

44. Announce your new focus. Write a short LinkedIn post announcing that I now help [one sentence], why I chose this focus, and how people can refer me. Under 150 words.

45. Ask a happy client for a referral. Write a message to [client] asking if they know 1 or 2 people who might benefit from [result]. Make it easy to say no. Under 70 words.

46. Pitch a referral partner. Write a message to [name], a [their role], suggesting we refer clients to each other. Explain the overlap and offer to send the first referral. Under 90 words.

47. Make an introduction easy. Write a short, forwardable blurb about me that a friend can paste into an email when introducing me to [type of person].

48. Thank a referrer. Write a short thank-you to [name] for referring [client]. Warm, specific, under 50 words.

49. Re-engage a past client. Write a message to [past client] checking how [result we delivered] is going and mentioning one new way I could help: [new offer]. Under 80 words.

50. Ask for a testimonial. Write a message asking [client] for a short testimonial. Include 3 easy questions they can answer. Under 90 words.

51. Turn a testimonial into proof. Here's a client's feedback: [paste]. Turn it into a 2-sentence testimonial (for their approval) and a short LinkedIn post celebrating their result.

52. Map your network. Help me brainstorm my warm network. Ask me 10 questions that will help me remember people I've worked with, studied with or met who might need [service] or know someone who does.

F. Follow-up (prompts 53 to 62)

53. Full sequence. I sent this first message [paste] [days] ago with no reply. Write 4 follow-ups over 4 weeks: a short nudge with one useful idea, a helpful resource, a short client story (placeholder for a real example), and a polite close. Each under 60 words.

54. Value nudge. Write a follow-up to [prospect] that shares one practical tip about [topic] they can use today. Under 50 words, no ask.

55. Resource share. Write a follow-up that shares [resource/link] and explains in one sentence why it's relevant to [prospect]'s situation. Under 50 words.

56. Story follow-up. Write a follow-up sharing a short story about how I helped [similar client] get [result]. Under 70 words. End with an easy question.

57. The polite close. Write a final follow-up that removes all pressure, says I'll stop reaching out, and leaves the door open. Under 50 words.

58. Not-right-now reply. A prospect said "not right now." Write a gracious reply that asks when they usually plan for this and confirms I'll check in then. Under 40 words.

59. 90-day check-in. Write a check-in message to a prospect I last spoke to 3 months ago about [problem]. Reference our past conversation and share something new. Under 60 words.

60. No-show follow-up. A prospect missed our scheduled call. Write a kind, no-guilt message offering two new times or a booking link. Under 40 words.

61. Ghosted after the call. We had a good call on [date] about [topic] and then they went quiet. Write a follow-up that recaps the value we discussed and asks a simple yes/no question. Under 60 words.

62. Re-open an old thread. Write a message to re-open a conversation from [months] ago with [prospect], using [new reason: a new offer, a result, a change in their business]. Under 60 words.

G. Content and visibility (prompts 63 to 72)

63. Content ideas. My ideal client is [paste]. Give me 20 post ideas that answer the questions they actually ask before hiring someone like me. Group them by problem, process, proof and personality.

64. Write a helpful post. Write a LinkedIn post that teaches [one tip] to [ideal client]. Hook in the first line, 3 to 5 short paragraphs, end with a question. Under 200 words, my voice.

65. Turn a client question into a post. A client asked me: "[question]." Turn my answer [paste rough answer] into a short, helpful post.

66. Write a story post. Turn this experience into a short story post with a lesson for my ideal client: [describe what happened].

67. Write hooks. Here's a post I wrote: [paste]. Write 10 alternative first lines that would make my ideal client stop scrolling. No clickbait.

68. Thoughtful comments. Here's a post from [prospect]: [paste]. Write 3 different thoughtful comments that add to the conversation (a question, an experience, a useful addition). Under 40 words each.

69. Repurpose one idea. Turn this post [paste] into: a short email newsletter section, 3 short social posts, and a 5-slide carousel outline.

70. Write a lead magnet. Suggest 5 simple free resources (checklists, templates, mini-guides) I could offer my ideal client to start conversations. Then outline the best one.

71. Plan a month of content. Create a 4-week content plan: 2 posts a week for [ideal client], mixing tips, stories, proof and a soft offer. One line per post.

72. Write a soft-offer post. Write a post that invites people to [book a call / join a waitlist / buy my offer] without sounding pushy. Lead with a client problem. Under 180 words.

H. Discovery calls (prompts 73 to 82)

73. Call prep. I have a call with [name], [role] at [company]. Here's what I know: [paste]. Give me 3 likely problems, 6 open-ended questions in order, 2 likely objections with honest responses, and one question to understand budget and timeline.

74. Write a call agenda. Write a simple 30-minute discovery call agenda I can share at the start of the call.

75. Booking confirmation. Write a short message confirming a discovery call, setting expectations, and asking one question they can think about beforehand. Under 70 words.

76. Pre-call questionnaire. Write a 5-question form a prospect fills in before a discovery call so I can prepare. Keep it under 5 minutes to complete.

77. Role-play the call. Play the role of [prospect type] who is interested but skeptical about hiring a [your role]. I'll practice my discovery call. Raise realistic objections. After 10 exchanges, give me feedback.

78. Summarize call notes. Here are my rough notes: [paste]. Summarize: situation, problem and cost, desired result, budget and timeline signals, decision makers, concerns, and next step.

79. Post-call thank-you. Using my call summary [paste], write a short thank-you email that recaps the 3 key points and confirms the next step. Under 120 words.

80. Spot red flags. Based on these call notes [paste], what red flags (budget, scope creep, fit, urgency) should I watch for? How should I address each before sending a proposal?

81. Decide fit. Based on these call notes [paste] and my ideal client [paste], should I propose, refer them elsewhere, or decline? Explain your reasoning.

82. Refer out gracefully. Write a kind message telling a prospect I'm not the right fit and recommending [alternative]. Under 70 words.

I. Proposals and pricing (prompts 83 to 92)

83. One-page proposal. Using my call summary [paste], write a one-page proposal: their situation in their words, the result they want, my approach in 3 steps, timeline, investment of [price], next step. Under 400 words.

84. Three-tier pricing. For this client [summary], create 3 options (essential, recommended, premium) for [service], with what's in each and a price. Make the middle option the clear best value.

85. Scope it clearly. List exactly what's included and not included in this project [describe], so there's no confusion later.

86. Price check. I'm charging [price] for [offer] to [client type]. Is that low, typical or high for [market]? What would justify charging more?

87. Raise your rates. Write a short, confident message telling existing clients my rates will increase from [old] to [new] on [date], with appreciation and no apology.

88. Proposal follow-up. I sent a proposal [days] ago with no reply. Write 3 short follow-ups for day 2, day 5 and day 10. Under 50 words each.

89. Payment terms. Suggest simple payment terms for a [price], [length] project that protect me and feel fair to the client. Write them as 3 short bullets for a proposal.

90. Retainer pitch. I just finished [project] for [client] with [result]. Write a message proposing an ongoing monthly retainer of [scope] at [price]. Under 120 words.

91. Upsell naturally. A client on [current offer] has [new need]. Write a short message suggesting [upgrade] as a natural next step. Under 80 words.

92. Write a simple agreement summary. Summarize the key terms of this engagement [details] in plain English for the client to confirm by email. (Not legal advice; I'll use a proper contract.)

J. Objections and closing (prompts 93 to 100)

93. Prepare for objections. I'm proposing [offer] at [price] to [client]. List the 5 most likely objections and a calm, honest two-sentence response to each.

94. "It's too expensive." Write 3 honest responses to "it's more than I expected" that explore what they're comparing it to and offer a smaller scope instead of a discount.

- 95. "I need to think about it." Write 3 gentle responses that help uncover the real concern without pressure.
- 96. "I need to ask my partner/team." Write a response offering a short forwardable summary, and draft that summary for [offer].
- 97. "We're trying to do it ourselves." Write a respectful response that acknowledges their choice and offers a lighter way I could help, such as a one-time setup or a review.
- 98. "Send me more information." Write a reply that asks what specifically would help them decide, plus a short summary I can send if they say "anything."
- 99. Close the loop. Write a short message asking for a decision on my proposal by [date], making it easy to say yes or no.
- 100. Lost deal review. I lost a deal with [client] because [reason]. Ask me 5 questions to learn from it, then suggest 3 changes for next time.

K. Onboarding and keeping clients (prompts 101 to 110)

- 101. Welcome email. Write a warm welcome email for a new [offer] client: what happens next, what I need from them, how we'll communicate, and the first milestone.
- 102. Onboarding checklist. Create an onboarding checklist for a new [service] client, from signed agreement to first deliverable.
- 103. Kickoff agenda. Write a 45-minute kickoff call agenda for a [service] project.
- 104. Weekly update. Turn these notes [paste] into a short weekly client update: done, next, and anything I need from them.
- 105. Handle a scope change. A client asked for [extra work] that's outside our agreement. Write a friendly message explaining it's outside scope and offering it as an add-on at [price].
- 106. Handle a late payment. Write a polite, firm reminder for an invoice that's [days] overdue. Under 60 words.
- 107. Results recap. Turn these project results [paste] into a short end-of-project summary for the client, highlighting the outcomes they care about.
- 108. Ask for feedback. Write a 4-question feedback survey to send at the end of a project.
- 109. Win back a past client. Write a message to a client who stopped working with me [months] ago, sharing something new and inviting them back. Under 80 words, no guilt.
- 110. Plan client check-ins. Create a simple schedule of check-in messages for past clients over 12 months, with one line describing each message.

Part 3: 30 outreach scripts

Replace every [bracket]. Then read each script out loud and change anything you wouldn't say.

28. Referral ask

Hi [Name], I'm glad [result] made such a difference. I'm taking on [number] new clients next month. Do you know 1 or 2 people who might be dealing with [problem]? No pressure at all.

After a call

29. Thank-you and next step

Hi [Name], thanks for the great conversation today. My takeaways: [1], [2], [3]. As promised, I'll send a proposal by [day]. Talk on [day] at [time].

30. Proposal delivery

Hi [Name], here's the proposal we discussed: [link]. I recommended [option] because [reason tied to their goal]. Happy to walk through it on [day], or just reply with any questions.

Part 4: 5 follow-up sequences

Each sequence has 5 touches. Adjust the timing to suit your audience, and stop the moment someone asks you to.

Sequence 1: Cold prospect (no reply to your first message)

Touch 1, Day 1: Your first message (Scripts 5 to 13).

Touch 2, Day 3 to 4: Light nudge

Hi [Name], floating this back up in case it got buried. One quick thought: [one useful idea]. Curious if [problem] is on your list this quarter.

Touch 3, Day 8 to 10: Resource

Hi [Name], I put together [checklist/article/tip] on [topic] and thought of you. Here it is: [link]. No reply needed.

Touch 4, Day 15 to 18: Story

Hi [Name], I recently worked with a [similar client] who was dealing with [problem]. We [what you did], and [result]. If that sounds familiar, I'm happy to share how.

Touch 5, Day 25 to 30: Polite close

Hi [Name], I haven't heard back, so I'll assume the timing isn't right and stop filling your inbox. If [problem] moves up the list, I'm easy to find. Wishing you a great quarter.

Sequence 2: Warm lead (they showed interest, then went quiet)

Touch 1, Day 1:

Hi [Name], great chatting about [topic]. Here's [the thing you promised]. Want to grab 20 minutes to talk through it? [booking link]

Touch 2, Day 3:

Hi [Name], just making sure this didn't slip through. Here's my calendar if a quick call would help:
[booking link]

Touch 3, Day 7:

Hi [Name], one more idea on [their goal]: [tip]. Happy to go deeper whenever suits you.

Touch 4, Day 14:

Hi [Name], is [goal] still a priority, or has something else taken over? Either answer is totally fine.

Touch 5, Day 30:

Hi [Name], I'll stop checking in for now. When you're ready to tackle [goal], I'd love to help.

Sequence 3: After a discovery call

Touch 1, Same day: Thank-you and recap (Script 29).

Touch 2, Within 2 days: Proposal delivery (Script 30).

Touch 3, Day 2 after proposal:

Hi [Name], did you have a chance to look at the proposal? Any questions I can answer?

Touch 4, Day 5 after proposal:

Hi [Name], thinking about what you said about [their words]. Here's [helpful resource or quick win] that might help either way.

Touch 5, Day 10 after proposal:

Hi [Name], should I keep the proposal open, or has the timing changed? Either way is completely fine. I just want to plan my calendar.

Sequence 4: Proposal sent, no decision

Touch 1, Day 3:

Hi [Name], quick check-in on the proposal. Is there anything that's unclear or that you'd like to adjust?

Touch 2, Day 7:

Hi [Name], if the full scope feels like a lot, we could start with [smaller option] and build from there. Would that be helpful?

Touch 3, Day 12:

Hi [Name], I have [number] openings starting [month]. I'd love to hold one for you. Can you let me know by [date]?

Touch 4, Day 18:

Hi [Name], I haven't heard back, so I'll release the spot on [date]. If anything changes, just reply.

Touch 5, Day 45:

Hi [Name], checking in now that a little time has passed. How is [their goal] going? The offer still stands if you'd like help.

Sequence 5: "Not right now"

Touch 1, Same day:

Totally understand. When do you usually plan for this kind of thing? I'll make a note to check in then.

Touch 2, 30 days:

Hi [Name], thought you'd find this useful: [resource]. No need to reply.

Touch 3, 60 days:

Hi [Name], I recently helped [similar client] with [result]. It made me think of our conversation about [topic].

Touch 4, Their planning time (or 90 days):

Hi [Name], you mentioned [month] might be a better time to look at [goal]. Is it still on the list?

Touch 5, 6 months:

Hi [Name], it's been a while. How are things going with [goal]? Happy to help whenever you're ready.

Part 5: Using the pipeline tracker

Your kit includes pipeline-tracker.xlsx. Open it in Excel, Google Sheets (File → Import) or Numbers.

Pipeline tab: one row per prospect.

Column	What to enter
Name, Company, Role	Who they are
Source	Where you found them (warm network, LinkedIn, group, referral)
Fit (A/B/C)	A = great fit with a clear sign of the problem
Personal detail	The specific thing you'll mention
Stage	Prospect → Contacted → Replied → Call booked → Proposal sent → Won / Lost / Later
Last contact	Date of your last message
Next step / Next date	What you'll do next and when
Value	What the deal is worth if they say yes
Notes	Anything worth remembering

Weekly numbers tab: each Friday, enter your messages sent, replies, calls booked and clients signed. The sheet calculates your reply rate, call rate and close rate, so you can see where to improve.

Your weekly routine:

- Monday: sort by Next date and plan your follow-ups. Add 10 new prospects.
- Tuesday and Thursday: send new messages and every follow-up that's due.
- Friday: update stages and fill in your weekly numbers.

Part 6: The client call toolkit

Most deals aren't won in the first message. They're won on the call. This part gives you the two calls that turn interest into a signed client, the words to use in each, and what to do when someone hesitates.

The path: first message → 15-minute fit call → 45-minute discovery call → proposal → short decision call (only if they need time).

Four rules for every call

1. Listen more than you talk. Aim for 70% them, 30% you. Write down their exact words about the problem; you'll use them later.
2. Sell the first step, not the whole project. If you start pricing everything you could ever do for them, they freeze. Sell a small, clear first step and decide the rest together once they've seen results.
3. Their words, their numbers. Play back their problems in their language, and connect your price to what the problem costs them each month.
4. Never end a call without a next step on the calendar. Either they say yes, or the next call is booked before you hang up.

Call 1: The 15-minute fit call

The goal: decide whether this person is worth a full discovery call. You're checking four things.

Check	What you're listening for
Fit	Warm, open, values what you do. You'd enjoy working together.
Realistic expectations	They see this as a process, not overnight magic.
A problem you can solve	Specific, and costing them time, money or growth.
Ready to act	They can decide, it matters now (7 or more out of 10), and they expect to invest.

Minute 0 to 2: Open and set the purpose

"Thanks for making time. The goal for the next 15 minutes is simple: get to know you and your business a bit, and see if it makes sense to set up a longer conversation. I'll ask a few questions, and you can ask me anything at the end. Sound good?"

Minute 2 to 4: Fit

"Before we get into business, what's keeping you busy these days?"

"What made you reach out now?"

"Have you worked with a [your role] before? What went well, and what didn't?"

Green flags: open, curious, specific. Red flags: curt, distracted, everything is someone else's fault.

Minute 4 to 7: Expectations

"If we worked together for three months and you were thrilled, what would have happened?"

"What's your timeline for seeing a real difference?"

Green flags: clear goals, realistic about effort. Red flags: wants everything fixed next week, can't describe what success looks like.

Minute 7 to 11: The problem

"If you could fix one thing in your business right now, what would it be?"

"What's that costing you, in time, money or missed opportunities?"

"What have you tried so far?"

Green flags: a concrete problem you solve, with a cost attached. Red flags: vague complaints, or problems that aren't yours to fix.

Minute 11 to 13: Ready to act

"If we found a clear way to fix this, are you the one who'd make the call, or would anyone else be involved?"

"On a scale of 1 to 10, how important is solving this right now?"

"Have you set aside a budget for this, or are you still exploring?"

Green flags: decides alone or knows the process, urgency of 7+, open to investing. Red flags: "just curious," no budget, 5 or below.

Minute 13 to 15: Close the call

If it's a fit:

"Based on what you've shared, I think there's a real fit. The next step is a 45-minute conversation where we map where you are, where you want to be, and exactly how I'd help, including the investment. I have [day/time] or [day/time]. Which works better?"

Send the calendar invite while you're still on the call, and invite everyone who'll be part of the decision.

If it's not a fit:

"I really appreciate you being open with me. Honestly, I don't think I'm the right fit for this right now, and I'd rather say that than waste your time. Can I send you a couple of resources that will help in the meantime?"

Call 2: The 45-minute discovery call

The goal: help them see clearly where they are, where they want to be and what the gap is costing them, so that working with you becomes the obvious next step. It's a conversation, not a presentation.

Part	Time	What you're doing
1. Reconnect	3 min	Rebuild rapport, reference something from the fit call
2. Set the agenda	2 min	Lay out the call and promise value either way
3. Where they are	12 min	The 3 biggest problems and what each one costs
4. Where they want to be	8 min	The 12-month picture and the number they'll measure
5. Play it back	5 min	Summarize in their words and get a "yes, that's it"
6. Recommend the path	10 min	Your approach, the first step and the investment
7. Decide	5 min	Ask for the decision, or book the decision call

1. Reconnect (3 min)

"Great to see you again. Last time you mentioned [something personal or specific]. How did that go?"

2. Set the agenda (2 min)

"Here's how I'd like to use our time. First, I want to go deeper on what's actually happening in your business. Second, I want to understand where you want to be a year from now. Then, if it makes sense, and only if it does, I'll show you how I'd help and what it would take. Either way, you'll leave with a clearer picture than you came in with. Sound good?"

3. Where they are (12 min)

"If we picked the three biggest things holding you back right now, what would they be?"

For each problem, dig in:

"What's causing that?"

"How long has it been going on?"

"What have you tried?"

"Roughly what does it cost you each month, in money, time or lost business?"

"How is it affecting you personally?"

Then the future cost:

"If nothing changes, what does this look like a year from now?"

"What does it cost you each month?" is the most important question of the call. Write the number down. It becomes the yardstick for your price.

4. Where they want to be (8 min)

"Let's flip it. Imagine it's a year from now, we worked together, and it went really well. What changed?"

"What number would tell you it worked? Revenue, hours saved, clients, something else?"

"Why that number? What would it mean for you?"

5. Play it back (5 min)

"Let me make sure I've got this right. Right now, you're dealing with [problem 1], [problem 2] and [problem 3], and it's costing you around [their number] a month, plus [the personal toll they described]. Where you want to be is [their goal], measured by [their number]. Did I get that right?"

Wait for a clear yes. If they correct you, even better: now you really understand it.

6. Recommend the path (10 min)

"Here's how I'd approach it. Step one is [the smallest sensible first step]. That gets you [quick result] within [timeframe]. Once we see that working, we decide together whether to take on [next step]. That way you never commit to a big number before you've seen results."

Then the investment:

"The first step is [price]. You told me this problem is costing you about [their number] a month, so the first step costs less than [X weeks] of the problem."

Then stop talking.

7. Decide (5 min)

"Based on everything we've talked through, does this feel like the right next step for you?"

Then be quiet and let them answer. If it's a yes:

"Great. I'll send the agreement and invoice within the hour. Let's put our kickoff on the calendar now. Does [day] or [day] work?"

If they need time, book the decision call before you hang up:

"Completely fair, it's a real decision. Let's put 20 minutes on the calendar for [day in 2 to 3 days], and we'll either get started or talk through whatever's still in the way. Between now and then, think about three things: what success looks like a year from now, what it costs you to wait, and any questions that are still on your mind."

Handling hesitation: find the real concern

When someone hesitates, it's information, not rejection. Use three moves.

1. Notice it out loud

"It seems like something's on your mind. What is it?"

2. Isolate it

"That's fair. Just so I understand, is that the only thing holding you back, or is there something else?"

3. Resolve it

"If we could sort out [their concern], would you want to go ahead?"

12 objections and what to say

1. "It's more than I expected."

"I understand. Can I ask what you were comparing it to? You mentioned this is costing you about [their number] a month. If the investment's the issue, I'd rather shrink the scope than cut corners. We could start with just [smaller first step] for [lower price]."

2. "I need to think about it."

"Of course. What specifically would you want to think through? If it's something I can answer now, I'd rather you have the information. If not, let's book 20 minutes later this week to close the loop."

3. "I need to talk to my partner (or team)."

"Makes sense. Would it help if I joined a short call with both of you, or would you rather I send a one-page summary you can share?"

4. "What if it doesn't work?"

"That's exactly why I suggest starting with [first step]. It's small, it has a clear result, and you'll see within [timeframe] whether it's working before we go further."

5. "Can you just send me some information?"

"Happy to. So I send the right thing, what would you need to see to make a decision?"

6. "We're going to try doing it ourselves first."

"That's a fair choice. If it helps, I could do a one-time [setup / review / plan] so you start in the right direction, and you take it from there."

7. "Now's not a good time."

"Understood. When would be a better time to revisit it? I'll put a note in my calendar and check back then. In the meantime, here's [useful resource]."

8. "I've hired someone before and it didn't work."

"I'm sorry, that's frustrating. What happened? [Listen.] Here's how I'd make sure that doesn't happen this time: [specific difference, such as a clear first step, weekly check-ins, or a defined result]."

9. "Can you do it cheaper?"

"I'd rather not lower the price and do less good work. What I can do is adjust the scope. Which part matters most to you right now?"

10. "I'm not sure I'm ready."

"What would ready look like for you? [Listen.] A lot of my clients felt the same and found that starting small made it feel manageable."

11. "How is this different from using AI or a cheaper freelancer?"

"AI and tools are part of how I work. What you're paying for is knowing what to do, in what order, for your business specifically, and someone accountable for the result."

12. "I'm talking to a few other people."

"That's smart. When you compare, look at [what makes you different: how you measure results, your process, your experience with clients like them]. What will help you decide?"

After every call: the 30-minute checklist

- If they said yes: send the agreement and invoice, the kickoff invite and a short prep email.
- If they need time: send the decision-call invite and a recap email that plays back their problems, goal and the cost of waiting, in their words.
- If it's not a fit: send a kind note and a resource, and set a check-back date.
- Every time: update your pipeline tracker with the stage, the problem and its monthly cost, the decision maker, any objections and the next date.

The kickoff prep email (when they say yes)

Welcome aboard, [Name]. Before our kickoff on [date], could you jot down three things and reply to this email?

1. The result you want from our work together, in your own words.
2. The one to three reasons you decided now was the time.
3. What things look like for you when this is working.

These help me show up to our first session ready to go.

AI prompts for your calls (from Part 2): 73 to 82 for call prep, notes and fit; 83 to 92 for proposals; 93 to 100 for objections and closing.
